Dean's Message | School of International Studies and Global Languages (SPAB)

Nurlisa Loke binti Abdullah
Dean

Welcome to the School of International Studies and Global Languages!

The School of International Studies and Global Languages (SPAB) provides English language courses for all undergraduate and postgraduate students at UTeM, ensuring that language proficiency develops alongside technical and professional knowledge in support of UTeM's TVET agenda. Learning English and additional foreign languages complements students' academic studies by strengthening communication skills, enhancing employability, expanding global career opportunities, and preparing graduates to work confidently across cultures and industries.

Through collaborations with partner universities in Japan, Kazakhstan, Türkiye, Indonesia, China, and other countries, SPAB offers students opportunities to learn foreign languages from native speakers while participating in international classrooms and cultural exchange programmes. Our academic staff also deliver English, Malay, Mandarin, and other language programmes to students from our partner universities, creating a vibrant environment for global learning and collaboration.

By combining language education, international collaboration, and technology, SPAB supports the development of graduates who complement their technical expertise with strong communication skills, global perspectives, and the confidence to succeed in an interconnected world.

All the best, and welcome once again!

DEPARTMENTS IN SPAB

Department of English Language

The Department of English Language offers compulsory courses at the Diploma and Bachelor's Degree levels. This department provides courses such as English for Academic Purposes, Academic Writing, and English for Professional Interaction. At the Diploma level, the courses offered include Foundation English, English for Effective Communication, and English for Marketability.

The department is actively involved in conducting university-level courses to enhance language skills among its staff and students. Short courses are offered to staff from the Responsibility Centres upon request. Additionally, the department organises workshops for the Malaysian University English Test (MUET) specifically for students.

Department of National Language and International Languages

The Department of National Language and International Language offers compulsory courses at the Bachelor's Degree levels. This department provides third language courses such as Arabic, Mandarin, Japanese, Korean, and German. It also offers Malay communication course(s) for international students.

In addition, the department frequently conducts university-level courses to enhance language skills among its staff and students, particularly in third languages.

Department of Human Skills Development

The Department of Human Skills Development offers several Compulsory University Courses for students in the Diploma and Bachelor's Degree programmes for local students. The Compulsory University Courses offered for the Bachelor's Degree programmes include Philosophy and Current Issues, Appreciation of Ethics and Civilisation, and the Integrity and Anti-Corruption Course, starting from Semester 1, 2023/2024. For the Diploma programmes, the Compulsory University Courses include the Integrity and Anti-Corruption Course and Appreciation of Ethics and Civilisation.

Starting from Semester 1 2026/2027, local students have to take the Compulsory University Courses offered for the Bachelor's Degree programmes include Philosophy and Current Challenges (Falsafah dan Cabaran Semasa), Malaysian Nation-State Aspiration (Aspirasi Negara Bangsa) and the Integrity and Anti-Corruption Course.

For international students, the department offers three (3) Compulsory University Courses: Philosophy and Current Issues, Malaysian Culture, and the Integrity and Anti-Corruption Course, starting from Semester 1, 2023/2024.

Starting from Semester 1 2026/2027, international students have to take three (3) Compulsory University Courses: Philosophy and Current Issues (Falsafah dan Isu Semasa), Malaysian Citra (Citra Malaysia) and The Integrity and Anti-Corruption Course.

In addition to the Compulsory University Courses, the department also offers an elective course for the Bachelor's Degree programmes such as Critical and Creative Thinking.

Department of Co-Curricular

The Department of Co-Curricular is responsible for offering courses based on eight (8) main pillars: Culture, Entrepreneurship, Initiative and Innovation, Leadership, Public Speaking, Community Service, Volunteering, and Sports, as required by the Ministry of Higher Education. Credit-bearing co-curricular courses are Compulsory University Courses for every student in the Diploma and Bachelor's Degree programmes. Students must pass the co-curricular courses taken before the awarding of their diploma and degree.

This department is responsible for implementing co-curricular courses both inside and outside the classroom. Additionally, the department focuses on the development of students' character by producing well-rounded graduates who are balanced and harmonious in physical, emotional, spiritual, intellectual, and social aspects (JERIS). The department also instills soft skills in students in line with the National Education Philosophy.

Other Services Offered at SPAB

The Academic English (AE) programme is also offered specifically for international students. The Academic English (AE) programme is designed for international pre-and post-graduate students who do not meet the minimum IELTS or TOEFL qualifications required to enrol in Bachelor's, Master's, and PhD programmes at UTeM.

For Language Services, the Department of English Language is also responsible for implementing and monitoring language service activities, such as proofreading, translation, and others.

Minimum English Language Requirements

International students whose first language is not English are required to obtain an appropriate score in an approved examination in English language (such as IELTS, TOEFL, Malaysian University English Test - MUET) before they can embark on an academic programme. Applicants need to show either a standard or a higher level of ability in English.

UTeM has established that all international students must possess proficiency in the English language. The minimum English language requirement is a score of 5.0 for IELTS, 500 for TOEFL, or Band 3.0 for the Malaysian University English Test (MUET).

If international students do not have IELTS, TOEFL, or MUET scores, they must attend the Academic English (AE) programme conducted by SPAB. The requirement to pass this programme is that students must take the MUET/IELTS at the end of the programme and meet the specified requirements.

Academic English Language Programme

If the students do not have the required standard of English, the University may offer them a pre-sessional Academic English Language programme conducted by the SPAB to meet required scores in order to gain admission for their undergraduate and postgraduate degrees at UTeM. Applicants need to achieve a minimum of 5.0 for IELTS, 500 for TOEFL or Band 3.0 for Malaysian University English Test (MUET).

All international students who intend to pursue their education in UTeM need to fulfil the set English Language requirement EXCEPT:

- i. International students who come from countries where English is the primary language of communication.
- ii. International students who have academic qualifications from institutions where English is the medium of instruction.

COURSE INFORMATION FOR DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH LANGUAGE

The information related to the synopsis for each course offered by the Department of English Language is as follows. The course descriptions are organised, starting with the courses at the Diploma programme level, followed by the courses at the Degree level.

DIPLOMA PROGRAMMES

DLLW 1112 / FOUNDATION ENGLISH

This course is designed to help students to improve their proficiency in the English language and to communicate effectively in both spoken and written forms. Five main aspects: listening, speaking, reading, writing and grammar are taught in an integrated approach to build confidence among the learners to become efficient speakers of English in their tertiary education.

DLLW 2122 / ENGLISH FOR EFFECTIVE COMMUNICATION

This course is designed to provide students with the necessary communication skills to communicate effectively. The elements of grammar are taught to complement the topics covered in this course. Students demonstrate interpersonal skills through speeches and role-play. The elements of problem-based learning (PBL) are especially exercised during the oral presentation of the product as well as role-play.

DLLW 3132 / ENGLISH FOR MARKETABILITY

This course aims to introduce and expose students to the basic tenets of communication specifically the oral and written communication required at the workplace. Students will be provided with the opportunity to produce a resume, a job-application letter, and a letter of inquiry. They will also be able to participate in an interview and a group discussion. Students will be exposed to situations where they learn to function as individuals and team members by communicating in spoken and written forms using appropriate language in a variety of workplace contexts.

DEGREE PROGRAMMES

BLLW 1142 / ENGLISH FOR ACADEMIC PURPOSES

This course aims to develop students' reading skills and grammar. A variety of academic reading texts and reading skills are explored to facilitate students' comprehension of the texts. These reading skills are also necessary in assisting students to master study skills. Grammar elements are taught in context to develop students' accuracy in the use of the language. This course also includes elements of blended learning.

BLLW 2152 / ACADEMIC WRITING

This course aims to equip the students with the skills to communicate clear and detailed viewpoints in writing. The students are expected to have a stand on topics of their fields by providing advantages and disadvantages to support their arguments. From time to time, consultations with the students will be conducted throughout the completion of their assignments. This serves as the formative evaluation in the course. Grammar components are embedded in the course to support the required writing skills. Blended learning is incorporated in this course.

Pre-Requisite: BLLW 1142

BLLW 3162 / ENGLISH FOR PROFESSIONAL INTERACTION

This course which is designed based on a blended and student-centred learning approach aims to develop students' listening skills as well as communication skills and strategies. Among the elements covered are professional interactions that include group discussion and public speaking. Students are also required to express ideas with relevant examples in public speaking and online assessments. They are also exposed to the rudiments of grammar implicitly via the communicative activities.

Pre-Requisite: BLLW 2152

COURSE INFORMATION FOR DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SKILLS DEVELOPMENT

Information regarding the synopsis for each course offered by the Department of Soft Skills Development is as follows. The course descriptions are organised starting with courses for the Diploma Programmes followed by courses for the Degree Programmes.

DIPLOMA PROGRAMMESDLHW 2722*INTEGRITY AND ANTI-CORRUPTION COURSE

The Integrity and Anti-Corruption (KIAR) course aims to introduce students to the practices of integrity and the importance of combating corruption in society and organisations. The focus of the course is on the values of integrity and corruption prevention, as well as the issues, challenges, and problems related to the management of corruption in both society and organisations. Learning activities include group discussions, reporting, and fieldwork within various sectors of society (public sector, private sector, NGOs, politics, and students).

DLHW 2772APPRECIATION OF ETHICS AND CIVILISATIONS

This course prepares students to appreciate the ethics and civilisation within Malaysia's multi-ethnic society, strengthening their critical and analytical thinking to address increasingly challenging life situations. The course content focuses on the understanding of ethics and civilisation in the Malaysian context. Students will be exposed to the dynamics of ethical and civilisational concepts that have been pivotal in the formation of Malaysia, tracing its historical evolution from the pre-colonial era to the post-colonial period. The development of ethics and civilisation in a diverse society will be discussed to enhance the appreciation of these values towards strengthening national unity and the Malaysian identity. The Malaysian model of civilisation needs to be explored and debated within academic activities, guided by the Federal Constitution as the foundation of integration and a framework for ethics and civilisation. Building national unity is significantly influenced by globalisation and the complex developments in information and communication technology. Therefore, the appreciation of ethics and civilisation is demonstrated by social responsibility behaviors and is driven at the individual, family, community, society, and national levels. As a result, the societal changes and direct economic development have introduced new challenges in reinforcing the sustainability of ethics and civilisation in Malaysia. High Impact Educational Practices (HIEPS) are applied in the teaching and learning process to deepen the understanding of this course.

DEGREE PROGRAMMES

PHILOSOPHY AND CURRENT CHALLENGES (FALSAFAH DAN CABARAN SEMASA)

This course introduces the fundamental philosophical foundations and conceptual frameworks that underpin the development of Malaysian society, with particular emphasis on the Rukun Negara, Falsafah Pendidikan Kebangsaan, Falsafah Sejahtera, and the Falsafah MADANI. Philosophical analysis is presented as a systematic intellectual approach that equips students with the tools to understand and address contemporary societal challenges. Through exposure to the core components of philosophical inquiry, students will develop the ability to critically and reflectively analyse current issues from multiple perspectives. By the end of the course, students are expected to evaluate and formulate strategies grounded in philosophical approaches to address future challenges, thereby contributing to the development of an inclusive, prosperous, and forward-looking Malaysian society.

BLHW2792

INTEGRITY AND ANTI- CORRUPTION COURSE

The Integrity and Anti-Corruption (KIAR) course aims to introduce students to the practices of integrity and the management of corruption prevention in society and organisations.
